

Download Not The Last Goodbye On Life Death Healing And Cancer

Memory gaps, such as being unable to recall what you did yesterday, or not knowing how long it's been since you last ate. Being disorganized and "spacey" — misplacing your keys or cell phone, losing your car in the parking lot, forgetting to return phone calls. For my darling husband Mike who lost the battle fighting cancer. My Dearest Darling I am not as strong as I thought I was Since you have been gone...Here it is. I'm dead, and this is my last post to my blog. In advance, I asked that once my body finally shut down from the punishments of my cancer, then my family and friends publish this prepared message I wrote—the first part of the process of turning this from an active website to an archive. Grief is neither an illness nor a pathological condition, but rather a highly personal and normal response to life-changing events,